Test Environment & Tools:

Website URL:	https://www.diving.org.il/
Browser:	Google Chrome
Browser Version:	131.0.6778.70 (Official Build) (64-bit) (cohort: Stable)
Operating System:	Windows 11
Mobile test on DevTools:	Samsung Galaxy S20 Ultra

Recommendation:

1. Cross platform language support: The TIDF website luck English support. The site set to English Mode should be the same as the Hebrew one. Starting from the tool bar that has limited options in English compared to Hebrew to entire sections turning to a blank page when entering in Hebrew then turning to English, no event information and registration page shifting in English. Those Problems limit the usage and usability of the site to a non-Hebrew speaker user and limits his ability to get diving information and integrate and be a part of the Israeli diving community.

2. Validation: All the registration forms luck input Validation. There is no error message to the user when entering non valid input. There is an option to enter special symbols in almost any section, able to enter letters in a number-only section, numbers in a letter -only section, entering one char ETC. All those validation issues need to be fixed because when the site accepts those errors as valid input not only are the users unaware of a mistake from his side, but the input is approved meaning the request would be handled correctly eider be the site or by the TIDF.

Exit criteria:

1. 90% Of the Test cases in the STD done – Checked.
2. No Critical or Showstopper bug severity - Checked.
3. No new Major and above bug severity found in the last 72 Hours- Checked.

Conclusion/Sign off:

Overall, the "The Israeli Diving Federation" site is functional for the Hebrew speaking user providing the user with useful information about course registration, event, diving clubs etc. In addition, it provides useful working features like insurance check and instruction section. How ever I would strongly advise as a QA tester to fix the bugs mentioned below in the next version in order to provide more users with a more accessible and easier to use site.

My Suggestion: Go Live.
